Political Causes

Political Causes

1. Policy of Expansion: The British policy of territorial expansion and gradual annexation of the native Indian States was one of the major problems of the Indian rulers.

- Since the Battle of Plassey (June 1757), the East India Company's territorial power increased rapidly.

- The British tried to expand their political power in India by four ways, i.e.,
- by outright wars, → (By fighting wars)
- by the system of Subsidiary Alliance,
- by adopting the Doctrine of Lapse and
- on the pretext of alleged misrule.

(A) Bengal, Bihar, Delhi

(B) Bihar, Orrisa, Delhi

(C) Bengal, Bihar, Orissa

(D) Agra, Delhi, Lucknow

Political Causes-Outright Wars

- After the Third Anglo-Maratha War (1817-18), the Peshwa's entire dominions and all Maratha territory north and south of the Narmada river were acquired by the British.
- The Punjab was annexed in 1849 after the Sikhs were defeated in the Second Anglo-Sikh War.
- From 1823 to 1856, the British further extended their empire by conquering Sindh, territories of Assam, Arakan and Tenasserim and Pegu in Myanmar.

1757 — 1856

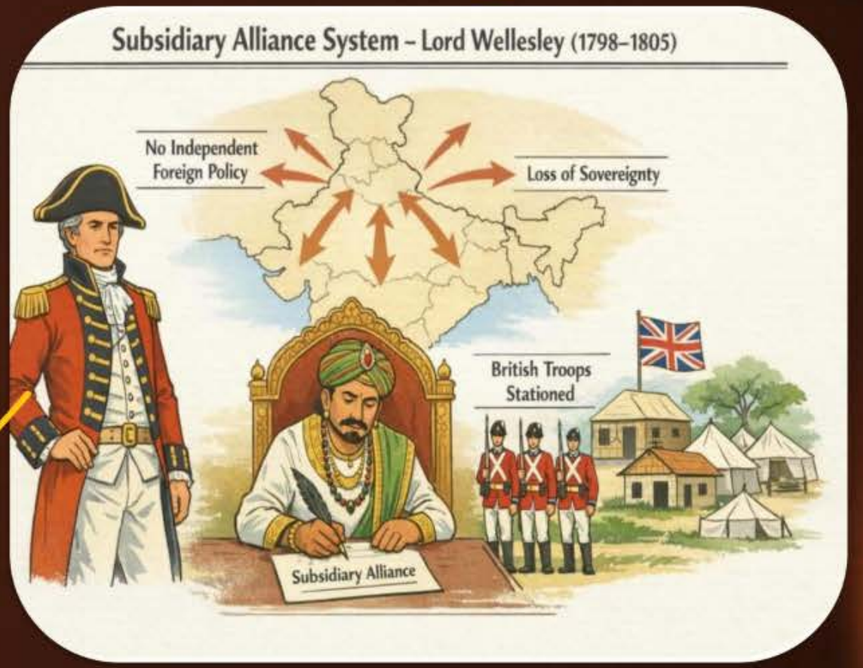

Political Causes-Subsidiary Alliance

Agreement-

Short Ques (2)

(b) By Subsidiary Alliance: Some Indian States were brought under the British control without actually annexing them. This was done by following the Subsidiary Alliance, introduced by Lord Wellesley.

- Subsidiary Alliance was an agreement between the British East India Company and the Indian Princely States by which these states lost their sovereignty (the power of a ruler to rule independently without any outside interference) to the British. Under this system, the Indian rulers, who agreed to the Subsidiary Alliance :

Under this system, the Indian rulers, who agreed to the Subsidiary Alliance :

(i) accepted the British as the supreme power;
(ii) surrendered their foreign relations to the East India Company and agreed that they would not enter into any alliance with any other power and would not wage wars;
(iii) accepted a British Resident at their headquarters and agreed not to employ any European in their service without consulting the Company;
(iv) agreed to maintain British troops at their own cost; and
(v) virtually lost their independence.

- The kingdom of Awadh (Oudh) was the first to enter into an alliance like this through the Treaty of Allahabad in 1765 by which the Company undertook to defend the frontiers of Awadh on the condition that the Nawab of Awadh would pay for the expenses for it .

- However, Awadh was annexed on the pretext of misrule in 1856.

- The other States which accepted the Subsidiary Alliance were :
- the Nizam of Hyderabad,
- the Ruler of Mysore,
- the Raja of Tanjore,
- the Sindhia and
- the Rajput States of Jodhpur, Jaipur, Macheri, Bundi and the Ruler of Bharatpur.

QUESTIONS

Subsidiary alliance was an agreement between the British East India Company and the Indian Rulers which stated that Indian ruler_____.

(A) Cannot keep their own army

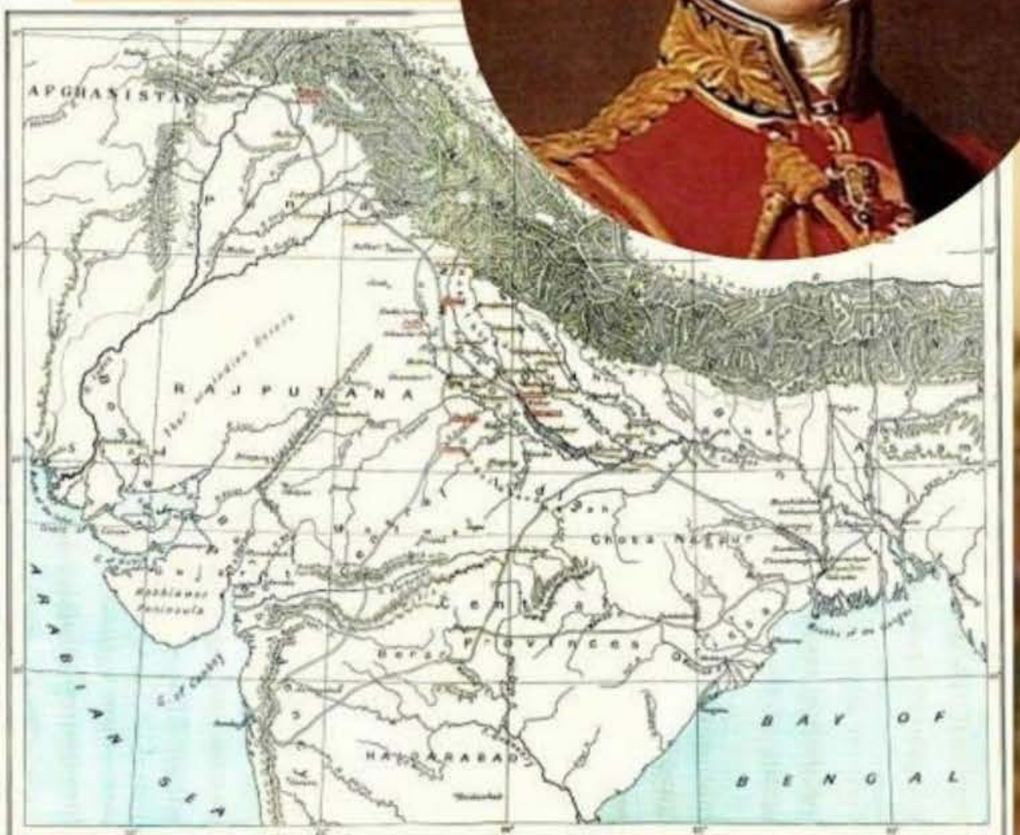

(B) Had to surrender their foreign relations

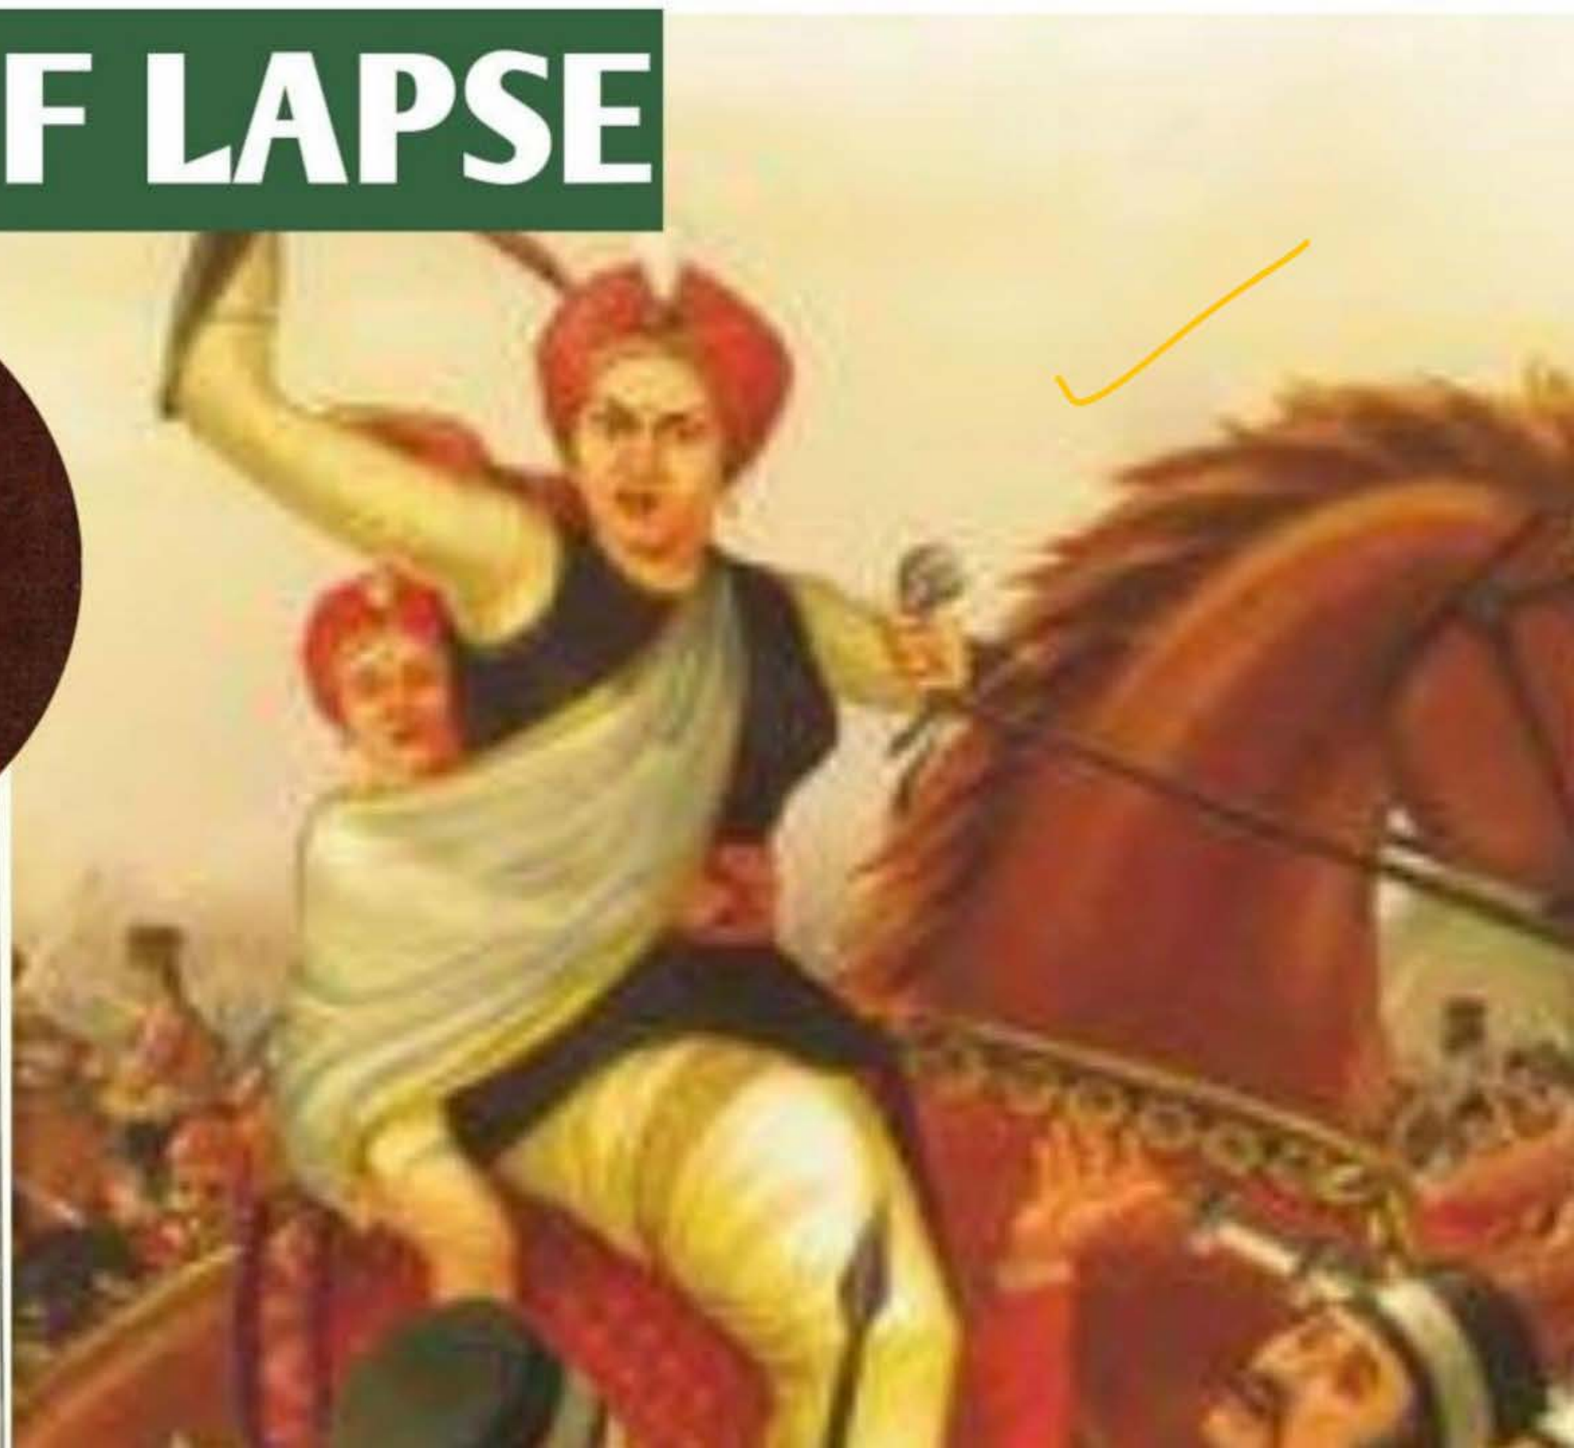

(C) Cannot employ any European without consulting the company

(D) All of the above

DOCTRINE OF LAPSE

(c) By Using the Doctrine of Lapse: Lord Dalhousie, the Governor-General of India, annexed many Indian States to the Company using the Doctrine of Lapse.

- According to this Doctrine, if an Indian ruler died without a male heir, his kingdom would lapse', that is, it would come under the Company's territory in India.
- When the ruler of Jhansi died in 1853, leaving no natural heir, the widowed Rani was pensioned and their adopted son, Anand Rao, was not recognised as a lawful successor to the throne.

- The other prominent States which were annexed :Satara (1848), Jaitpur , Sambhalpur (1849), Baghat (1850), Udaipur (1852), Jhansi (1853),Nagpur(1854)
- The principle of Lapse also took away the titles and pensions of the rulers of some States.
- Regal titles of the Nawabs of Carnatic and Tanjore were taken away.
- This caused discontent among the rulers as well as among the people.
- The rulers of Indian States believed that their States were annexed not by the application of Doctrine of Lapse but by the 'lapse of all morals' on the part of the British.

QUESTIONS

Doctrine of Lapse was introduced by____.

(A) Lord Wellesley

(B) Lord Dalhousie

(C) Lord Canning

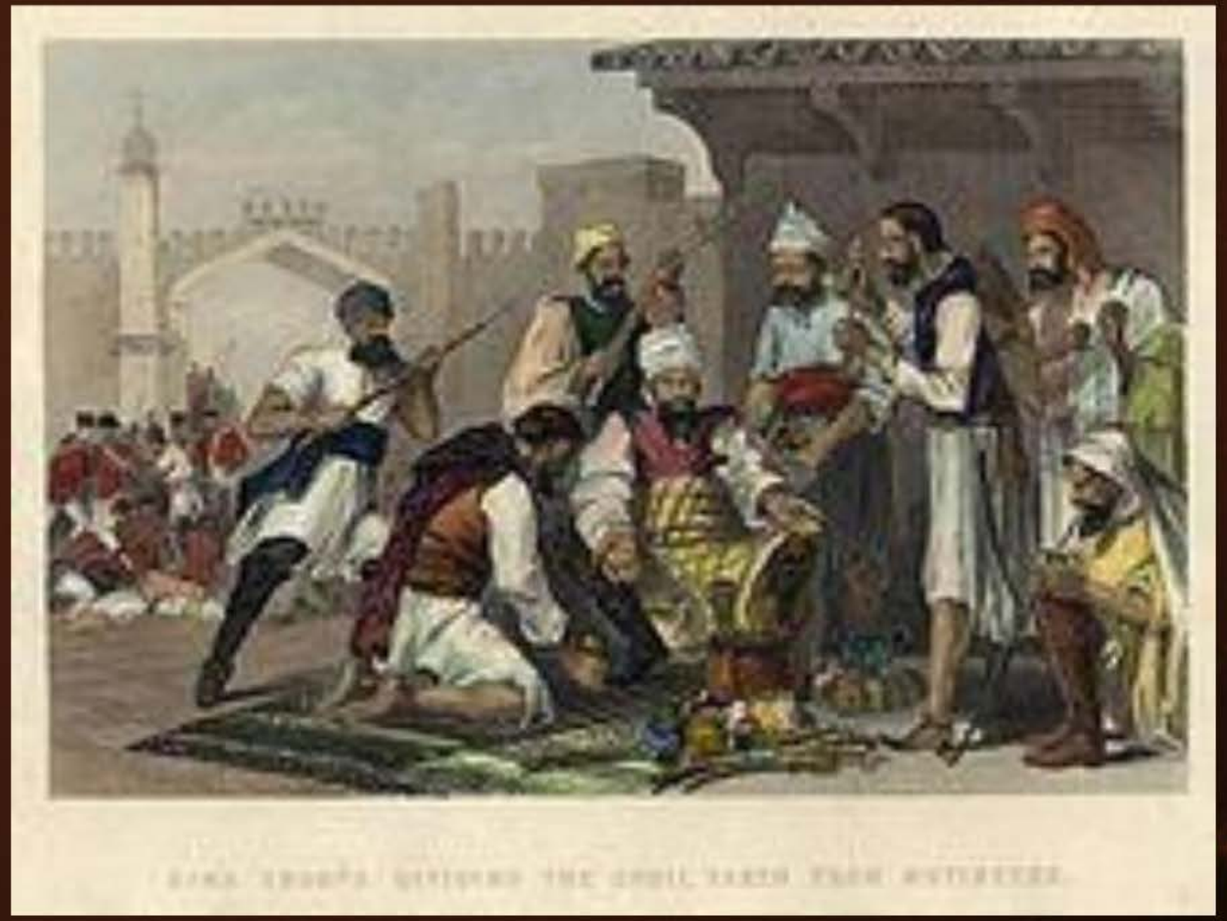

(D) Zeenat Mahal

(d) On the Pretext of Alleged Misrule: In 1856, Lord Dalhousie annexed Awadh to the Company's dominions on the pretext of alleged misrule. He declared that Awadh was being misgoverned, and British rule was needed to ensure proper administration.

- Lord Dalhousie justified the annexation of Awadh on the pretext of "the good of the governed." On the contrary, the people of Awadh, had to face more hardships.
- They had to pay higher land revenue and additional taxes on food, houses and ferries.

- The dissolution of the Nawab of Awadh's army and administration threw thousands of nobles, officials and soldiers out of jobs.
- The British confiscated the estates of the talukdars or zamindars. The talukdars became the opponents of the British rule.
- The company's sepoys, of whom 75,000 were from Awadh, were the worst affected. These soldiers had helped the British to conquer the rest of India. But they resented the fact that their homelands had come under foreign rule.
- The annexation of Awadh also affected the soldier's financial position. They had to pay higher taxes on the land their families held in Awadh.

Angered by the way in which the Nawab of Awadh was deposed, the people of Awadh joined the uprising that broke in 1857. Awadh played a major role in the Uprising of 1857.

Disrespect Towards Bahadur Shah Zafar

- Bahadur Shah, the Mughal ruler, was a pensioner of the British.
- Lord Dalhousie announced that he and his family will not be able to reside in Red Fort and will be shifted to an area near Qutub Minar
- The name of the Mughal king was removed from the coins which were minted by the Company.

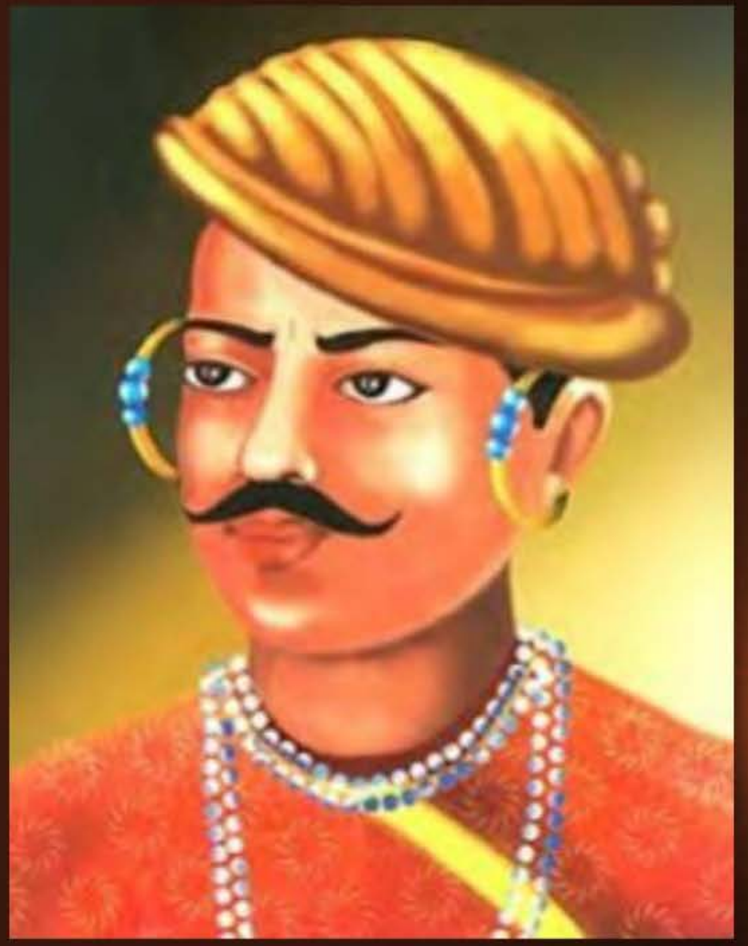

Disrespect Towards Bahadur Shah Zafar

- In 1856, Lord Canning declared Bahadur Shah Zafar as the last king of the Mughal dynasty.
- He announced that none of his descendants would be recognised as kings; rather, they would only be called princes.
- This made Muslims angry, and his wife Zeenat Mahal began planning against the British

Treatment Given To Nana Saheb and Lakshmi Bai

- Nana Sahib, the adopted son of Baji Rao II, the last Peshwa, was refused pension by the British after the death of Baji Rao II.
- He was forced to live at Kanpur (now in UP) far away from his family seat –Poona .
- This created anger and protest in the Maratha community.
- Rani Laxmibai also became the fierce enemy of the British after her kingdom of Jhansi was annexed by the British on the principle of the Doctrine of Lapse.

Absentee Sovereignty of The British-Remote Control

2 marks

- India was being ruled by British government from England through the East India Company.
- Although Mughals were also foreigners, but they settled in India and the revenues they collected were also spent in India.
- But in case of British they ruled from England and India's wealth was being drained to England.

Socio-Religious Causes

Interference With Social Customs

Interference with Social Customs:

- The English took various measures to reform the evils which had come into Indian society.
- The practice of sati was banned in 1829 and the Widow Remarriage Act was passed in 1856. Western education was opened to girls.
- These reforms were not welcomed by the people, because while introducing these reforms, the feelings of the people were not taken into consideration although these reforms were aimed at improving the conditions of the people.

Fear About Modern Innovations

Fear of Modern Innovations :

- For example, innovations like Railways and telegraph.
- There were rumours that telegraph poles were erected to hang people who were against the British.
- Similarly, the sitting arrangement in the railways compartment to sit side by side made them to believe that it will defy their caste and religion.

Fear Of Western Education

- Introduction of western system of education in Calcutta Madrasa (1829) and in Banaras Sanskrit college was not welcomed by the people.
- Shifting from oriental(old) education to western education was not welcomed especially by pandits and maulvis.
- They saw it as an attempt to discourage traditional Hindu and Islamic Studies.
